2007 Federal Grant-Supported Statewide Projects, Programs, and Services

Through participation in grants, training, and statewide projects, Washington librarians were better able to assist their customers in using libraries and finding online information.

- Washington libraries of all types and schools received grants to:
 - Help libraries reach out to their communities and inform people of the wide array of services available at the library or through the library on the Internet.
 - Offer “community reads one book” programming to encourage public reading and literacy.
 - Prepare children to read upon entering school (largely funded by a grant to the Washington State Library from the Paul G. Allen Family Foundation).
 - Provide better access to quality information resources and literacy programs.
 - Preserve “treasures” in Washington libraries for future generations.
 - Upgrade computer hardware for public access to online information (largely funded by a grant to the Washington State Library from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation).
- Washington library staff received training in the following areas:
 - Exploring new technologies that support leading edge communication techniques: Blogs, wikis, and social software; Wireless; Podcasting and instant messaging; RSS feeds.
 - Offering digital collections both within the library and through the Internet.
 - Building partnerships with other organizations to serve community needs.
 - Sustaining public access to computers and online information in rural libraries.
 - Helping parents prepare children to be ready to read upon entering school (in cooperation with the OSPI Indian Education Office and the Washington State Migrant Council).
- Customers of all types of libraries gained access to quality information through online magazine and newspaper resources.
 - Libraries were able to provide these resources through centralized group purchasing coordinated by Washington State Library staff.
- Libraries were better able to meet the needs of traditionally unserved individuals:
 - Library services to the blind (Washington Talking Book and Braille Library).
 - Library materials for individuals in state correctional facilities.
- Read to Your Baby booklets were distributed in six languages to libraries and community partners.
 - The booklets are an early learning and child development resource for parents with young children.
- Partnered with the Washington Library Media Association in support of quality school library media centers.

Consulting

Washington State Library staff provides in-depth research and advice for libraries, the public, and government in areas such as legal and governance issues, development of policies and services, planning, trustee responsibilities and relationships, and establishing library districts.

Washington State Library staff provides specialized IT consulting services for libraries in network infrastructure, computing hardware and software, the Children’s Internet Protection Act (CIPA), and the federal E-rate program. The IT Consultants assist public libraries in connecting to the statewide, high-speed educational data and video K-20 network and provide centralized Internet filtering for small libraries.
